Fish and Game Laws of Indiana.

By the act of March 11th, 1880, Road Supervisors are given the powers and duties of Constables in all cases of violations of the Fish and Game Laws, as follows:

SECTION 1. Be it enacted by the General Assembly of the State of Indiana: That it shall be the duty of the Road Supervisors to arrest or cause to be arrested and to prosecute or cause to be prosecuted any or all persons violating any of the provisions of the acts, or any law heretofore or hereafter to be enacted, for the protection of game and fish. And said Road Supervisors shall be allowed a fee of five dollars, to be taxed as costs against each person convicted of violating any of the provisions of said laws.

SEC. 2. Any Road Supervisor who shall fail or refuse to discharge the duties of Constables as aforesaid, and make or cause to be made said arrests, and prosecute or cause to be prosecuted all cases coming to his knowledge of violation of the game or fish laws of the State, shall, upon conviction, be fined in any sum not less than five nor more than twenty-five dollars.

It is hereby ordered that the Road Supervisors of the State carry out the provisions of this act and arrest and prosecute all persons (1) who have seines or nets in their possession not wholly for use in the St. Joseph River, Lake Michigan or private ponds, excepting a seine not more than 15 feet in length for exclusive use in taking minnows for bait; (2) all persons who shall take at any time any fish from any of the lakes, rivers or small streams of the State by dynamite or any other explosive, or who shall at any time take any fish with a net or seine (except in the St. Joseph River, or excepting with a minnow seine as described above) or gun or trap of any kind, and all persons who shall take any fish with a gig or spear from any of the waters during the months of January, February, March, April, May, June, November or December of any year; and all persons who shall in any month of any year take any fish from any lake which has been stocked with fish by the United States Government, at any time during the first three succeeding years after it has been stocked by the United States Government, with gig or spear; and (3) all persons who shall put into the waters of the State any seine or net (excepting a minnow seine and excepting the St. Joseph River and Lake Michigan), or any explosive, or any drug, medicated bait or poison of any kind, with intent thereby to poison or catch fish.

Each Road Supervisor has jurisdiction over a territory but a few miles square, and if he, as a sworn officer of the State, does his duty as fish constable, there would be but few violations of the fish laws, and our waters would

AUBURN.

AUBURN, the county seat of DeKalb County, is located in the central part of the same, and has a population of about 3,300. It is one of the prettiest little places in Northern Indiana, and while it is not under city government, yet every citizen is wide-awake in keeping abreast with cities much its superior in size. Its streets and alleys are kept clean the year 'round, and as the drainage is good the roads are seldom muddy. An electric light system makes daylight out of darkness, and the many excellent wells (some artesian) furnish the entire place with an abundance of water both for domestic and factory use. Auburn is one of the leading manufacturing towns for its size in the State, becoming famous by the many high-grade vehicles that are being turned out yearly. One thing that helps to make this a manufacturing town is its excellent shipping facilities, being surrounded by railroads that are direct routes to all parts of the United States. Branches of the Lake Shore and Wabash railroads pass through the city, while the main lines of the Baltimore & Ohio and Lake Shore can be easily reached, as they both pass through the county. The schools are governed by a corps of excellent teachers and board of directors. The business blocks and residences are a credit to the place. In short, Auburn is a hustling little place where anyone can find labor and plenty of opportunities to invest their capital in a profitable manner.

AUBURN JUNCTION

Is a suburb of Auburn, about one mile and a half from the Court House, and is the junction of the Baltimore & Ohio and branches of the Lake Shore and Wabash railroads. It is a very popular transfer station, and as many people are compelled to wait at this point for trains and as it is also an excellent shipping point, a nice little burg has sprung up at this place. A list of its business men follow:

GARRETT.

GARRETT, the railroad town of DeKalb, is situated in the western part of the county. It is the location of the Baltimore & Ohio shops and the home of many a railroader. In fact this is about the only enterprise in the city, and as Garrett is not a prominent trading center the merchants depend upon the railroad men for their entire support. Garrett is over twenty years old and is now a very prosperous little city. The citizens are wide-awake and realize the value of modern improvements. A good system of electric lights are operated and controlled by enterprising citizens, and at a called election some time ago the people voted for waterworks and the construction of the same has just begun. The elegant stores, large churches and school buildings show that the town has and is enjoying the best of prosperity. No line of business is overdone and with its 3,500 inhabitants it stands first in population in the county.

BISHOP & LACKEY.

Do Not Forget

that Bishop & Lackey have largely exceeded all previous efforts in merchandising in DeKalb County.

Better Dress Goods.

Pick up any one of the half hundred styles shown here and you will find a texture, dye and finish that are vastly ahead of the ordinary article. Careful buying does it for you, for us, and the prices are on a low level.

Underwear.

Low prices because bought cheap. We let the manufacturer overstock—it would be bad merchandising for us to do so. Over 6000 pieces of knit Underwear in our store now. These are fresh from the manufacturer and $\frac{1}{2}$ underpriced.

Hosiery.

All grades suitable for the fall and winter season in all wool, wool-mixed, fleece-lined and cotton goods for men, women and children. 400 doz. now under our roof, bought before the advance.

Furs and Cloaks.

We are showing a very large line of stylish Fur Garments. Prices could not be duplicated if we bought them now.

Cottons are Up

everywhere but here. We laid in a stock when they were cheap and now you can buy a full supply and save something.

Blankets.

We have almost Five hundred that we bought this year, before the advance in prices. As an inducement for you to buy now, we make prices less than later on.

We Have

the finest show rooms in DeKalb County, also some of the most courteous salespeople, and what will interest you more—sharp buyers say our prices are right. You are free to come and look; we won't press you to buy.

BISHOP & LACKEY.
